Morris Polich & Purdy LLP Announces New Partner – D. Creighton Sebra

Los Angeles, CA --- Morris Polich & Purdy LLP is pleased to announce that D. Creighton Sebra, a senior associate with the firm since 2007, recently became a partner of the firm.

Creighton joins 18 existing partners in the firm's construction and design law practice group, which represents and counsels construction contractors, subcontractors, design professionals and construction managers and owners in all types of construction projects, including public, commercial, industrial and residential construction.

Prior to law school, Creighton worked for both a civil engineering contractor and a general building contractor as a project manager, as well as a project estimator. This experience within the construction industry, combined with his experience litigating construction issues, enables Creighton to provide invaluable service in the representation of construction contractors and other industry professionals, including subcontractors, design professionals and owners.

"We are very excited to have Creighton join us as a partner of the firm, specializing in construction law," says Managing Partner Don Ridge. "Promoting from the ranks has always been an important part of our firm culture, as well as a practice that ensures the high level of client service upon which MPP prides itself. Our clients have been reaping the benefits of Creighton's expert advice and counsel, and we know that he will continue to provide the highest level of service to them."
